

S_{ystem} Selection and Implementation

Choosing and implementing the right Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) system can be a difficult and overwhelming task. Implemented correctly, an effective ERP system can provide a competitive advantage to your business and is a critical component in achieving your business goals. The wrong system can saddle a company with poor productivity, ineffective information, and low employee morale. Cohn Consulting Group, a division of J.H. Cohn, provides the expertise and confident guidance that come from years of experience in successful enterprise system selection and implementation. We make sure that your project is on the right track and that all factors affecting the business have been appropriately considered.

Our services include:

- Software requirements definition
- Software systems research and identification
- Software selection
- Business process evaluation
- Business process redesign and deployment
- Software systems integration design
- Software implementation facilitation
- Network and hardware assessment
- Network design and implementation

Why Companies Choose J.H. Cohn

- Fear of selecting the wrong system or vendor
- Little or no experience in conducting a non-biased system selection
- Lack of knowledge of currently available ERP system capabilities
- Prior implementation failure
- Lack of internal resources to dedicate to project

The Cohn Consulting Difference
